An IT company based in Porto, Portugal producing a variety of cloud-based platforms is now offering to partners the possibility to be an extension of their IT team through an outsourcing agreement. They can supply excellent developers with different levels of experience in the latest technology stack.

Established in 1992, this Portuguese company specializes in designing, building, and operating software solutions and apps around the needs of the users, from workflow software to administration and management platforms, self-storage management, transports and logistics, portals, tournaments and academy management and risk assessment, among other vertical markets. The software architecture and design patterns used include C#, SQL, Angular 5+, Angular 2\5, HTML5, CSS, Javascript, JQuery, MySQL, Git, SCSS, Java React.js, React Native and Node.js. The company looks to work with partners who do not have the in-house capacity to develop these solutions or are simply looking to set up a nearshore arm of their business to support the teams in their home countries and provide a flexible additional resource of developers and testers. With high level of experience, the company is offering its services to small and medium-sized enterprises through a Nearshore outsourcing agreement. Partners can scale up or scale down services provided, depending on the business requirements.
